FATE OF 250,000 GERMANS IN BALKANS HANGS IN THE BALANCE AS POWERFUL RUSSIAN FORCES THREATEN TO SEAL OFF NAZIS; SOVIETS LIBERATE OVER 100 TOWNS

Soviet Juggernaut Sweeps 60 Miles To Reach The Yugoslav Border

TAKE TURN-SEVERIN

Allies Near Siegfried Line; May Be Decisive Struggle

By International News Service

Fate of two hundred and fifty thousand Germans in the Balkans seemed to hang in the balance today.

Powerful mechanized Russian forces threaten to seal off the Nazis.

Liberating more than a 100 towns and villages, the Soviet juggernaut swept 60 miles across southwestern Romania to reach the Yugoslav border.

Occupation of the city of Turnu-Severin by General Rodion Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian Army placed the Russians within 100 miles of the Yugoslavian capital at Belgrade.

War news from other fronts also was again favorable for the Allies. The enemy was being hammered hard from Italy's rugged hills to the blue expanse of the Pacific.

In France, Allied armies rolled farther on toward the Siegfried Line and what may be the decisive struggle of the European conflict. The town of Gent was reported by Supreme Allied Headquarters to have been captured and Contrail was said to be cleared of the enemy.

Historic Armentieres also was taken, along with an area west of Lille as far as Merville.

Americans pushed a strong column across the Meuse River at Aachen, and presently are driving through Ardennes Forest on the road to Luxembourg. German resistance, however, was strengthening, particularly in the Nancy-Metz region, and indications were that the Yank troops may be engaged in a major battle within a short time.

To the south, American and French troops of the United States Seventh Army were racing toward a junction with their comrades in northern France. The Seventh Army was reported closing in on the vital communications center of Dijon, 38 miles north of Chalon-Sur-Saone.

The Seventh advanced through the Saone River valley and on toward Belfort Gap—which may become the springboard for an all-out assault against southwestern Germany—with only minor opposition.

Less than 60 miles now separates the Seventh Army from forces of Lt. Gen. George Patton's Third Army in northern France.

The famed gambling resort town of Monte Carlo, figured in the news this morning when American destroyers, hammering Nazi gun positions in the principality of Monaco, hurled 360 rounds of shells against the enemy.

In Italy, heavy fighting developed in the Adriatic sector. Indian troops of the Eighth Army seized the village of La Verna, depriving the Germans of an excellent observation post that figured in the battle raging between the upper Arno and upper Tiber valleys.

3RD AND 7TH ARMIES JOIN AT GERMAN BORDER

S. H. A. E. F.—Front line dispatches today reported the long-awaited junction between troops of the Allied Third and Seventh Armies at an undisclosed point close to the German border and all signs pointed to imminent full scale frontal assault against the Siegfried Line.

Lieut. Gen. Patton, commander of the Third Army which swept at lightning pace across France, carried out a thorough-going first hand inspection of American emplacements along the Moselle River in preparation for resumption of all-out action against Germany's crumbling forces.

This was followed by reports of the junction, which carried the Allied Seventh Army under Lieut. Gen. Alexander M. Patch up from the Riviera, Lyon and Beconan to a union with Third Army forces somewhere in France.

Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters meanwhile announced a new crossing of the Meuse River at Aachen and progress through the Ardennes Forest toward Germany and Luxembourg in the face of constantly stiffening German resistance.

INITIAL OUTPOST BATTLE FOR GERMANY FLARES

With the U. S. Army at the Moselle River—Armored troops under Lieut. Gen. Patton went to the backs of the Moselle opposite Metz today as the initial outpost battle for Germany flared in increasing violence along the heavily-defended river.

The whole action was marked by the bloodiest fighting since D-Day and it became obvious that Hitler has compelled the German army, under the whip of S. S. "Watchmen" to put an end to the retreat from France at the approaches to the Siegfried Line.

The great German retreat from France and the Lowlands is beginning to disclose itself as a desperate move by which Hitler made the most of the worst—ruthlessly standing the German people against the wall of their homeland while Allied forces hammered their way to the doorsteps of the Reich.

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY TOWNS

Activities of Interest To All In The Various Communities

GLEANED BY SCRIBES

The formation of a new joint high school, the fourth now in operation in Bucks county, has been announced by the school directors of Warminster and Upper Southampton townships.

The new school, which will occupy the present Upper Southampton high school building at Southampton, has been designated as the Upper Southampton - Warminster Joint High School, and began operations as such with the opening of school yesterday.

Under the terms of the agreement drawn up, each district will share the cost of operating the high school on the basis of the number of pupils in average daily attendance. The increase in the number of pupils enrolled is expected to result in operating economies which will permit the broadening of the school curriculum and the addition of a more extensive sports and activity program.

Officers of the new joint high school, who will also serve as the joint committee to operate the school, are: President, William A. Yerkes, Southampton; vice-president, Samuel Walker, Ivyland; secretary, A. L. Fisher, Hartsville; treasurer, Harry L. Harding, Southampton; F. Eugene Klinger has been elected as supervising principal.

Previous to his transfer, Pvt. Sigafos was a member of the Pennsylvania 11th Infantry and has been overseas for the past year.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

The Wallace Overplay

Washington, Sept. 6. ONE of the most distressing things that can happen to a sincere man in public life is to be overplayed by his zealous friends. Of course, if he is a conscious demagogue, he co-operates in the overplaying, takes the leading part himself, encourages the claque.

It is different with the sincere man—particularly a sincere man who has certain limitations and yet burns with the inner flame of the born reformer. It is not good at all for such a man to be overplayed.

FOR what occurs then is that he takes the whole business with deep seriousness and pretty soon begins to believe he looks like the lovely picture his friends have painted—or, anyhow, he spends his time trying to look like that picture. Inevitably, he gets out of focus. This is what happened to Vice-President Henry Wallace a few years ago. His friends were responsible. They gave him a large overdose of praise then, and there are signs now they are preparing to overdose him again.

LETTERS TO AN AMERICAN FAMILY

No. 11

(Doylestown Intelligencer, September 7th)

Dear John and Mary Citizen:—

Your reply came today, and I was gratified to have you express your interest in the subject of the New Deal's effect upon your daily lives.

I am going to start by recalling the night when John, Jr., had just received his draft call and realized he had to go, leaving his wife and baby behind.

While you were talking it over, one of you—and I'm sorry I don't remember which—said something which has been ringing in my mind ever since. It was this:

"Being an American sometimes calls for sacrifices—but it's worth all it costs."

That is so true!

No matter how much history one reads, I don't think any of us ever stops getting a thrill in remembering how many generations, how many struggles, how many wars, how many lives, it cost to build a nation like the United States, nor how valuable to us is the form of government we inherited.

Unlike most other countries, our form of government did not just grow into what it is. American men sat down together with the best thinking of three thousand years of history at their disposal, and chose from among all the available plans the one which offered the best hope of success as a nation and freedom as a people.

These men weren't merely making an experiment—they were meeting an urgent need. The new nation born by the Revolution was desperately sick, if not dying, and the Americans who met in Philadelphia in 1787 were working against time to save it.

They wanted several things. They wanted, not just temporarily but forever, to be free from tyranny—they'd seen enough of it in their own lifetimes to know how miserable is the lot of the average citizen when his rulers become too powerful.

They wanted a permanent government, but adaptable enough to meet changing needs; one that could expand with the growing nation; one which could, should the need arise, be changed in fundamental respects—but changed by orderly processes, neither by stealth nor fraud nor revolution.

They wanted a chief executive, but they were determined to guard against his ever seizing too much power. They planned deliberately that the office they called President should be held back from autocracy by Congress, the Courts, the Constitution itself; so that the President might always be the leader, but never the master.

Just as a group of men might decide to protect a joint bank account by providing that checks against it must be signed by two or more of their number, so the founders of the nation sought to protect our great possession—liberty—by making the three essential branches of government equal and independent.

The Revolution won freedom—freedom for the nation, freedom for the citizens in it. The purpose of the Constitution was to preserve that freedom. Under the

Legion Calls Meeting To Plan for Marking End of War With Germany

INVITE ALL TO ATTEND

A meeting has been called for Tuesday evening in the Bracken Post Home of the American Legion, at which time it is proposed to discuss and consider plans for marking the end of the war with Germany.

The meeting will get under way at eight o'clock and individuals and representatives of lodges, service clubs and other interested groups are asked to attend.

It is planned by the Legion to get a consensus of opinions as to the form of marking the end of hostilities with Germany. Some have suggested that there should be a big parade held on the evening of the day upon which the war with Germany officially ends. Others think that the event should be marked in an entirely different manner, and it is with the idea of getting the opinions of many others that the meeting has been called for Tuesday evening.

A committee has not been named, but William Mack, an active and prominent Legionnaire, has been selected chairman by the Bracken Post to open the meeting Tuesday night.

Mr. Mack is very anxious that all persons interested attend the meeting. Organizations are invited to send representatives and to voice their opinions. Churches have been asked to aid the project, and the Rev. George E. Boswell, dean of the Bristol clergymen, has stated that he will ask the other clergymen to attend. Burgess Jacob C. Schmidt, Sr., has given his approval and is of the opinion that the affair should be supported enthusiastically by the residents of Bristol. Approval has been voiced by Chief of Police Linford J. Jones, and Fire Chief Hagerman has informed the Legion that the fire department will join in the affair.

The Rev. Paul E. Baird and the Rev. Albert Glass, assistant rectors of St. Mark's Church, are interested, and will aid the project.

FOUR YEARS IN JAIL GIVEN CAR DRIVER IN FATAL ACCIDENT

Frank Sachs, of Chalfont, Pleads Guilty Before Judge Keller

KILLED GIRL OF 18

"No Parole" To Be Granted Is Edict of The Judge

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 7.—Four years in the Bucks County Prison and "no parole" before that term is served, was the sentence imposed on 20-year-old William Frank Sachs, Chalfont "automobile cowboy," who pleaded guilty yesterday before President Judge Hiram H. Keller to charges of involuntary manslaughter and failure to stop and render assistance that resulted in the death of Elizabeth Ellen Helsel, 18-year-old West Chester State Teachers' College student on the night of May 28.

Miss Helsel was riding a bicycle in front of her parents' home on the Limekiln pike, near Chalfont, when she was struck by an automobile driven by Sachs—a car that he had taken from a friend and without the permission of the owner, and was driving without an operator's license. The girl was killed almost instantly. Sachs fled and was arrested later in New Jersey after abandoning the car near the scene of the accident.

The victim was the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Chester Helsel, then of Chalfont, but now of Ambler. Dr. Helsel is a well known chiropractor.

"The evidence is overwhelming against you in this case," Judge Keller remarked to Sachs in pronouncing sentence. "You are an irresponsible individual who does not care what happens. You are what your attorney has described you—an automobile cowboy." By your carelessness you have snuffed out the life of a young girl. You did not see fit to stop after striking her, in spite of her father's warning, and then you fled."

Attorney Webster S. Achey, representing Sachs stated to the court that there is nothing that can be done to atone the parents of this young girl whose life was lost, and that his client had nothing to do but to plead guilty.

District Attorney Edward G. Biester, for the Commonwealth, stated to the court that this was a very serious offense.

"Of course the sentence that the court imposes will not heal the wounds inflicted in this case, but this boy's record is bad; the whole picture is black," District Attorney Biester commented. "I think a substantial sentence should be imposed."

On the charge of involuntary manslaughter, Judge Keller sentenced Sachs to pay a fine of $500 and costs and serve three years in the Bucks County Prison on the charge of failing to stop and render assistance, a fine of $5 and costs and one year in prison, to begin at the expiration of the first sentence, was imposed. Sentence was suspended on a charge of assault upon Dr. Helsel, the victim's father.

Trooper J. J. Shovelin, of the Doylestown sub-station of State Police, who with other troopers investigated the case, read Sachs' confession to the court. Sachs testified that the settlement was correct in detail and that he was guilty, and that he had been drinking some beer in Philadelphia the afternoon of May 28 and some more beer at a hotel in Hilltown on the evening the accident occurred.

According to Trooper Shovelin, Sachs struck the girl, he fled to Philadelphia with the assistance of his brother, Fred, and on into New Jersey to the home of an uncle where he was later arrested. Sachs told police that he was driving along Limekiln pike when a tire blew out as he was going at a fast clip; causing the car to turn around two or three times and hit the bank on the side of the highway.

Sachs told Trooper Shovelin that he heard somebody holler but he didn't know that he had struck the girl, at that time. He said that he lost control of the car and everything "went black."

Testifying yesterday Sachs stated that he got scared and "all of a sudden thought maybe he did hit the girl and he drove as fast as he could."

Sachs hid the car in a garage near Chalfont after driving away, and Sachs himself hid in some high grass. Another car came along and his brother Fred was in it. The defendant testified that he then told his brother what had happened, and that it was then that Fred Sachs told his brother that

RAILROAD CASUALTIES

The Interstate Commerce Com-
mission recently released figures
for the first six months of this
year on the number of casualties
caused by railroad accidents.
They show that 2,277 persons
were killed, including passengers,
employees and persons who had
no business on railroad property.

Although the total seems large,
it is really small compared to the
tremendous distances covered by
the railroads of the United States
and with the heavy wartime burden of passengers and freight.
But the real significance of the
commission's figures is revealed
when they are compared to the
first six months of 1943. An increase in casualties might have
been expected as traffic movement became heavier and the equipment became older. Instead there is a reduction from
the 1943 figures of 72.

The total of passenger deaths
remained the same for both periods—43—a small number considering the many millions of
passengers transported.

The commission's report contains statistics on the number of persons injured. Here the record is amazingly good. Only
1,973 persons injured as against
2,429 in 1943.

These figures should calm any
fears which may linger in the
public mind concerning the ability of the railroads to stand up
under the strain of wartime
traffic. When shortages in personnel and materials are taken
into consideration, the record
seems almost incredible.

PULLMAN'S TURN

On October 5 a major change
in a familiar American set-up is scheduled to occur. The Pull-
man Company on that date is to
submit a plan for divorcing its
sleeping car and car manufacturing operations. A new court order holds the manner in which
this company has operated for
three-quarters of a century illegal.

The sleeping car business is operated by the Pullman Company and the manufacturing end
by the Pullman Standard Car
Manufacturing Company, both
being subsidiaries of Pullman Inc.

One possibility is the sale of
the sleeping car business to the
railroads, with the parent company retaining the manufacturing
concern. This would turn over
to 139 Class 1 railroads, 7,766
sleeping cars. There are various
methods by which this division of
cars could be carried out. It
could be made on the basis of
average Pullman revenues shown
by the various roads. Another
plan would distribute the sleeping cars to eastern, western and
southern groups, thus permitting
the maintenance of car pooling
as at present practiced with the
nation as a unit.

The cars may be sold to individual railroads, but the roads do
not appear enthusiastic about this
plan, contending that it would
compel individual roads to buy
additional cars to meet peak
traffic demands, leaving idle cars
standing in yards in slack seasons.

Even Jim brightened at that and climbed out of bed. He witnessed the embrace, choked up and turned away. But Nora kissed Jim back and, for the first time in weeks, they looked at each other in the old,
secret way of lovers.

joyed by this sudden return of Nora's spirits.

mie. "Now you plan the whole thing

ground for holding that Mr. Wal-

ground for this assumption, but it
seemed plausible. At any rate, Mr.

his friends into ecstasies. It was
likened to the Gettysburg Address.
He was hailed as a second Lincoln

terrible case of overplaying, though.
It would not have been so had he not for Mr. Wallace's efforts to measure
up. From then on his speeches
were all based on the assumption
that he really was "the great liberal leader."

AFTER a while this began not to
sit so well with the White House
aides and the Wallace campaign
began to bog down very quickly when it
became clear that Mr. Roosevelt's
real choice for his successor was
Mr. Roosevelt. The notion that Mr.
Roosevelt had a special fondness
for Mr. Wallace was badly damaged, too, when the President sustained Mr. Jesse Jones in his feud
with Mr. Wallace and shot the latter's so-called Board of Economic Welfare from under him. For a

while "the great liberal leader"
was somewhat subdued, but his
friends did not let him stay that
way. His campaign for renomi-nation, supported by the CIO and all
the radical organs in the country,
got under way.

AGAIN hailed as the "great liberal
leader" Mr. Wallace responded with
a series of speeches assailing big
business and the railroads and pro-
claiming himself the champion of
the "common man." In all this he
was entirely sincere. However, the
general response was not favorable.
Mr. Wallace gained a reputation of
being an extreme and somewhat
unbalanced radical whom it would
be very bad to have in the White House—if anything happened to
Mr. Roosevelt. To such an extent
did this feeling spread, that Mr.
Roosevelt's political wheel horses,
such as Eddie Kelly of Chicago, in-
sisted that the renomination of Mr.
Wallace might cost him a million
votes. In consequence, Mr. Wallace, honest, sincere and full of
noble impulses, was ditched by the President—for purely selfish and
sordid reasons.

IT WAS a dreadful blow to Mr.
Wallace and his friends, but they
were all so completely committed
to Mr. Roosevelt that they could
not afford to get mad and denounce
him. Like Mr. Wallace, they just
had to keep in line. But this reverse only discouraged the Wallace
group for a short while. Already,
another drive to overplay him has
begun. His boosters in the radical
press insist that he now has a
larger personal following than ever
before, which, of course, is non-
sense. The CIO publicity agencies,
the "liberal" communists and the
organs of the Communist party all
sing the same tune. Despite the
treachery which sunk him at Chicago, Mr. Wallace, they say, is still
the "hope of the liberals." More-
over, though he will support Mr.
Roosevelt in this campaign, in the future Mr. Wallace will not be

found walking in the footsteps of
any man but marching at the head
of the "great liberal movement,"
carrying aloft its unstained banner.

—O—
THERE we have it again—this terrible overplay of a sincere man by
his more or less sincere friends.
And, once more the undismayed
and always credulous Mr. Wallace
is about to respond with speeches.
It is a strange and somewhat pa-
thetic exhibition. The truth about
Mr. Wallace is that he is not a
"great liberal leader" but a rather
confused crusader who has been
labeled a leader. He is the victim
of the overplay of his injudicious
friends. He is almost certain, if
he keeps heeding their calls, to
have other bumps and bruises as
he rushes along the road. But,
nothing can be done about that.
Curiously enough, he seems to like
falling down.

Faith Clarke's SHOPPING TIPS FOR BUDGETEERS

SMARTER THAN SMART are the new "lumberjack" suits in the Snellenburg Suit Dept. They are especially popular for school or college and with matrons of the suburban set. At a good medium price ($29.95) and in a good quality, all the suits are in smart checks, black and white or blue and white. 100% wool, of course. This is a California creation and it is rightly being featured in "Mademoiselle" magazine. Sizes 9 to 15. (2nd fl.)

YOU'NG SOCKS are unexpectedly nice this year in the Snellenburg Store, in spite of duration restrictions. Always noted for good-wearing school socks, every effort to live up to its reputation. There are some girls' three-quarter brown and blue numbers of fine cotton, plain weave, with fancy tops, at 29¢ a pair, sizes 7 1/2 to 9 1/2. Boys' sturdy crew socks in that beloved colorful Argyle diamond pattern, sizes 9 to 11, all fine cotton, are priced at 55¢ a pair. (1st fl.)

"MAIN-STREETERS" are the modern shoes so popular with college and high school students and young mothers as well. Just the right price for a good-wearing pump, "Main-Streeters" can be had for $5.45 in sizes 4 to 9. Brown and black. Several particularly flattering styles from which to select. The good heel is neither too high nor too low—just about right for any but formal evening wear. I wish you'd try on several styles of "Main-Streeters" to determine the one that really "belongs" to you. Snellenburg, Shoe Dept. (1st fl.)

NYLON CONVENIENCES are beginning to come through! You housewives should see the grand damp-proof and air-proof covers for broad bowls, electric appliances, and the like, that can be had at 1st fl. counter in the Snellenburg Store. Many of these are nylon, including a 7-piece bowl set at $1.75, a 3-piece set at $1. Wonderful is the oblong, square-end metal-zippered nylon cover for a loaf of bread, at $2.25, and one for vegetables at the same price. Service women like these same bags, too, to keep possessions in damp climates or insect-infested areas! Enamored girls adore them as kitchen shower gifts. (Notions Dept., 1st fl.)

SWEATER YEAR. More than ever, good sweaters will be in demand this Autumn and Winter. Not only for wear under coats and suits, but because of possible fuel shortage and keeping comfy indoors. The Sweater Bar of the Snellenburg Store (Sportswear Dept.) is especially well stocked. However, I would call to your particular attention two attractive numbers—an all-wool, long-sleeved, fitted Cardigan in luscious high shades and black and brown as well, in sizes 34 to 40, at $5; and a long-sleeved "Slippy Joe" pull-over with yoke effect in contrasting stitch, at $3.98. The latter also comes in sizes 34 to 40 and in pretty shades. (2nd fl.)

P.S. Shop at this friendly store—Market from 11th to 12th, thru to 125-29 Chestnut St., Phila. Or order by mail. Or 'phone free (5c, 10c and 15c out-of-town calls only.) Clippings appreciated. Penna. number, EXTerprise 10160; New Jersey, WX-1150. Cheerio!

Spanish Recipes Combine Meats and Tomatoes

Victory gardens are laden with tomatoes—those historic fruits originally known as love apples. Probably because the first wild tomatoes were discovered in South America, we often use them in sauces and meat combinations that have Spanish or Mexican motif. Tomatoes are especially good with meats and may be served in a variety of ways.

Ripe or green tomatoes sliced (with skin on), dipped in a mixture of corn meal, sugar, salt and pepper, and fried in bacon drippings will make a luscious breakfast or luncheon dish when served on rounds of toast and topped with crisp bacon slices.

A Spanish sauce is perfect for various ready-to-eat meats and also for roast beef, hamburger, and many meat loaves. To make Spanish sauce, cook slowly one tablespoon of chopped onion and one tablespoon of chopped green pepper in two tablespoons of drippings or lard for about five minutes. Add two cups of stewed tomatoes, salt and pepper to taste, and simmer until sauce is thick. This makes about one and a half cups of sauce.

Stuffed Baked Tomatoes
6 firm, smooth tomatoes
1½ cups soft bread crumbs
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons bacon drippings
3 crisply broiled bacon slices, crumbled.

Cut a piece from the stem end of each tomato and remove centers without breaking the walls. Make a stuffing of the tomato centers and other ingredients, mix well and pack into tomato shells. Place small piece of butter or inch-long piece of uncooked bacon on top. Put in baking dish and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until tender. Serve hot in baking dish.

Smothered Beef Specialty
3 lbs. of chuck, rump, clod, or any less tender cut of beef
Flour
Salt and pepper
1 cup cooked, strained tomatoes
3 onions
3 tablespoons drippings
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
1 teaspoon celery seed.

Dredge the meat with flour mixed with salt and pepper and brown it in fat in a heavy frying pan. Slice the onions and brown them in the drippings. Add to this the mustard, celery seed, and tomatoes. Pour this hot sauce over the meat and simmer about three hours, or until meat is tender.

Chili Balls
1 pound ground beef
1 pound ground pork
1 beaten egg
½ cup milk
2/3 cup uncooked rice
2 teaspoons chili powder
3 teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons lard or drippings
2½ cups cooked tomatoes
2½ cups water
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt

Mix the ground pork and beef with the egg, milk, rice, and one teaspoon of chili powder. Form into balls and brown them in hot fat. Combine the tomatoes, water, onion, remaining salt and chili powder. Bring this to a boil. Drop meat balls into the liquid; cover pan and simmer slowly for one and a half hours. This makes 18 balls. They are good served on hot macaroni or rice.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up at night. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Fate of 250,000 Germans in Balkans Hangs in Balance

American patrols of the Fifth Army entered the town of Prato. The Fifth made appreciable progress also in the direction of Pistoia and already control a north-south highway leading to the town.

Nazi forces frantically used small arms, mortar and machine-gun fire and dense mine fields in attempts to halt the Fifth's advance.

But spearheads of the Fifth, under Lt. Gen. Mark Wayne Clark, already are within six miles of the Germans' vaunted Gothic Line stretching across northern Italy.

In the Pacific, new sky blows were hurled against the Japanese, from the island of Marcus and Iwo Jima in the north as far south as the Dutch Indies.

Pacific fleet headquarters disclosed that Marcus had been attacked by land-based Liberator bombers for the first time. The planes presumably sortied from the Marianas Island chain, and, despite heavy anti-aircraft fire, destroyed numerous installations and a building believed to have been an ammunition dump.

A Navy B-24, fanning out to Iwo Jima, downed a Japanese transport plane, the Navy announced. This disclosure came shortly after radio Tokyo reported six Japanese admirals were lost in "recent enemy action."

Other bombers, from Southwest Pacific areas, struck at the Philippines, where three additional Japanese freighters were sunk, and in addition raided the enemy's Sasa airbase on Davao. Raids also were carried out against German Island in the Netherlands Indies and upon Japanese positions on Dutch New Guinea's Vogelkop Peninsula.

Japan is "in the midst of a grave situation upon which depends the rise or fall of the Empire," according to the Japanese Premier, Gen. Kuniaki Koiso, who in his first speech since he succeeded Hideo Tojo told the 85th extraordinary session of the Diet that Japan can not overlook possibility of an Allied landing in Nippon.

Three Brothers Meet In One of Scotland's Ports

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Sept. 7.—The three sons of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tochterman, Sr., met accidentally in Scotland recently.

When Fred Tochterman, Merchant Seaman, passed through the customs at a Scottish port one of the officials remarked on the oddness of his name, stating that he had passed two other merchant seamen through on the previous day. Fred made further inquiry and located the ship on which his two brothers, Frank and William, are serving.

This was the first meeting of the brothers in several months. Fred had not known that both his brothers were stationed on the same ship.

Help us all, our heavenly Father, to seek first the kingdom of heaven and its righteousness. May we put first things first in order of time, in order of importance, in order of endeavor. May we all be in quest of the best, and never be satisfied with any lesser good. Thou didst give unto us thy very best, thy very all, even thy only begotten Son. May we respond by giving thee, not our second best, but our very all. We ask in the name of Jesus Christ. Amen.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh
Thad Phibbs' Formula for Fun

Thad Phibbs has a theory of enjoyment all his own. The more tired he is from working at the War Plant, the more fun he has pitching horseshoes with the boys these summer evenings.
"That's because I feel that I deserve it," Thad says simply.
And I wonder if he isn't right. I wonder if we don't enjoy things in proportion as we know we've earned them. Is a little relaxation ever more welcome than after a hard day's work? Do we appreciate our little pleasures quite as much as when we know in our hearts we've done a good job well?
From where I sit, that's one of the things this wartime strain has taught us. We're all of us working hard at our jobs, doing our level best to pull our weight. And we're learning the little rewards, the simple pleasures—a home-cooked meal, a glass of beer with friends—are more welcome now than ever... because we've earned them!

YANKEE FANS ARE WATCHING DETROIT AS RACE NEARS END

They Secretly Expect Yanks To Win Pennant But Have Fingers Crossed

MUST BEAT TIGERS

Tigers Are Within A Half-Game of The Leaders

By John Cashman
(N. Y. Sports Writer)
NEW YORK, Sept. 7 (AP)—While they've made no public pronouncement on the matter, people up Yankee Stadium may secretly, silently expect the Bronx Bombers to win the American League pennant this year, but today they looked in the direction of Detroit and crossed their fingers.

Ed Barrow, major domo of the Yanks' front office, openly admits the Tigers are the team to beat.

Detroit will be the toughest club for us to keep down," asserted the 70-year-old Mr. Barrow.

"The Tigers," he said, "not only have the best pitching, but they've proved terrific in the clutch."

These observations from Barrow came as the Tiger tornado rolled into within a game and a half of the league-leading Yankees, and only one game behind the St. Louis Browns.

This high-flying Detroit gang edged a notch closer to the leaders with a 3 to 2 triumph over the Chicago White Sox last night in the lone major league contest on schedule.

The Tigers grabbed a two-run lead over the Sox's John Humphries, and added the clincher tally in the third. Chicago scored single markers in the second and third, but collected eight hits off Rufe Gentry in comparison to seven Humphries allowed Detroit.

With the Yankees idle again today while both St. Louis and the terrific Tigers engage in games that may bring the American League close closer to a dead heat, there was little wonder that the Bronx Lilgade took note of the situation. He may have been whistling through the graveyard, of course, but spokesman Barrow had virtually nothing to say in favor of the St. Louis Browns.

"The toughest team between the Yanks and the pennant," he stated, "is Detroit," adding that Boston's Red Sox have a fighting chance to win.

The Tigers, who chinned themselves just off the cellar deck since July 10, square off today with Cleveland. The Browns tackle Chicago.

A victory for St. Louis over the Sox, in their night contest in Chicago, would deadlock the league lead insofar as the Yanks, who polished off the Camp Shanks Army Club, 14-1, in an exhibition game yesterday, have a holiday.

The Tigers, of course, could nudge in behind the Yanks by only one game if Detroit takes the Indians.

Far as bearing on the pennant race, National League games for the day were of little consequence, except for the trio of cellar dwellers—Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Boston. For your information, however, the league leading St. Louis Cardinals meet Chicago at night in Sportsman's Park, Boston plays at New York, Pittsburgh invades Cincinnati and Brooklyn appears at Philadelphia.

he had assisted in taking Miss Helsel to the Elm Terrace Hospital at Lansdale, where she was pronounced dead.

The defendant stated that he then took the car out of the garage, drove it down a road, abandoned it and rode to Philadelphia with his brother, Raymond Vanlueve. Sachs testified, reported the car stolen.

Sachs took a bus from Philadelphia to Pitman, N. J., to the home of Fred Lyster, Jr. The next morning he said that he read in a Philadelphia newspaper that the girl had died, and then he was really scared still more. State Police came to the uncle's house in Pitman and arrested Sachs after his brother had furnished them with the information.

Dr. Helsel, the victim's father, testified that he was standing under an overshoot of his barn when he saw a car coming down the highway at a high rate of speed. He said that he heard a terrific impact. Dr. Helsel said that he did not actually see the car strike his daughter's bicycle but that she was carried about 150 feet and saw her drop off the windshield of the car. Dr. Helsel said that he signaled for the driver to stop but that he did not see him. He said that he had stepped out of the way, he too, would have been hit by the car.

The defendant Sachs testified that he was born in Philadelphia but that he had been living with his grandfather, Fred Lyster, in Chalfont, for some time. He stated that he attended Newville school up until the eighth grade, the same school that Miss Helsel once attended.

Sachs testified that he enlisted in the Army over a year ago and was discharged in Kentucky for "lack of intelligence." He later worked in a Lansdale feed mill, then in a concrete block plant at Chalfont. He also served six months in the Merchant Marine. He was arrested once for being in possession of brass knuckles just before entering the Merchant Marine. When he was arrested he was working for a farmer near Carversville.

The records show that Sachs was discharged from the Army on a medical certificate under "Section 8"—"Inaptness or undesirable habits or traits of character."

Fred Sachs, brother of the defendant, testified that he was driving along Iamokin pike at the time of the accident and that he did not know then that his brother was the driver of the car that had struck Miss Helsel, but that he learned it Mrs. Carl Shreiber, Daniel McIntyre, Mr. and Mrs. John Dreisig-

Character witnesses called in behalf of Sachs included G. C. Widney, Newville; John Stadenycki and Mrs. Anna Formenski, of near Chalfont; and Peter Rickert, of Hilltown township.

FATE OF 250,000 GERMANS IN BALKANS HANGS IN THE BALANCE AS POWERFUL RUSSIAN FORCES THREATEN TO SEAL OFF NAZIS; SOVIETS LIBERATE OVER 100 TOWNS

Soviet Juggernaut Sweeps 60 Miles To Reach The Yugoslav Border

TAKE TURN-SEVERIN

Allies Near Siegfried Line; May Be Decisive Struggle

By International News Service

Fate of two hundred and fifty thousand Germans in the Balkans seemed to hang in the balance today.

Powerful mechanized Russian forces threaten to seal off the Nazis.

Liberating more than a 100 towns and villages, the Soviet juggernaut swept 60 miles across southwestern Romania to reach the Yugoslav border.

Occupation of the city of Turnu-Severin by General Rodion Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian Army placed the Russians within 100 miles of the Yugoslavian capital at Belgrade.

War news from other fronts also was again favorable for the Allies. The enemy was being hammered hard from Italy's rugged hills to the blue expanse of the Pacific.

In France, Allied armies rolled farther on toward the Siegfried Line and what may be the decisive struggle of the European conflict. The town of Gent was reported by Supreme Allied Headquarters to have been captured and Courtrai was said to be cleared of the enemy.

Historic Armentieres also was taken, along with an area west of Lille as far as Merville.

Americans pushed a strong column across the Meuse River at Aachen, and presently are driving through Ardennes Forest on the road to Luxembourg. German resistance, however, was strengthening, particularly in the Nancy-Metz region, and indications were that the Yank troops may be engaged in a major battle within a short time.

To the south, American and French troops of the United States Seventh Army were racing toward a junction with their comrades in northern France. The Seventh Army was reported closing in on the vital communications center of Dijon, 38 miles north of Chalon-Sur-Saone.

The Seventh advanced through the Saone River valley and on toward Belfort Gap—which may become the springboard for an all-out assault against southwestern Germany—with only minor opposition.

Less than 60 miles now separates the Seventh Army from forces of Lt. Gen. George Patton's Third Army in northern France.

The famed gambling resort town of Monte Carlo, figured in the news this morning when American destroyers, hammering Nazi gun positions in the principality of Monaco, hurled 360 rounds of shells against the enemy.

In Italy, heavy fighting developed in the Adriatic sector. Indian troops of the Eighth Army seized the village of La Verna, depriving the Germans of an excellent observation post that figured in the battle raging between the upper Arno and upper Tiber valleys.

3RD AND 7TH ARMIES JOIN AT GERMAN BORDER

S. H. A. E. F.—Front line dispatches today reported the long-awaited junction between troops of the Allied Third and Seventh Armies at an undisclosed point close to the German border and all signs pointed to imminent full scale frontal assault against the Siegfried Line.

Lieut. Gen. Patton, commander of the Third Army which swept at lightning pace across France, carried out a thorough-going first hand inspection of American emplacements along the Moselle River in preparation for resumption of all-out action against Germany's crumbling forces.

This was followed by reports of the junction, which carried the Allied Seventh Army under Lieut. Gen. Alexander M. Patch up from the Riviera, Lyon and Bezancon to a union with Third Army forces somewhere in France.

Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters meanwhile announced a new crossing of the Meuse River at Aachen and progress through the Ardennes Forest toward Germany and Luxembourg in the face of constantly stiffening German resistance.

INITIAL OUTPOST BATTLE FOR GERMANY FLARES

With the U. S. Army at the Moselle River—Armored troops under Lieut. Gen. Patton went to the backs of the Moselle opposite Metz today as the initial outpost battle for Germany flared in increasing violence along the heavily-defended river.

The whole action was marked by the bloodiest fighting since D-Day and it became obvious that Hitler has compelled the German army, under the whiplash of S. S. "Watchmen" to put an end to the retreat from France at the approaches to the Siegfried Line.

The great German retreat from France and the Lowlands is beginning to disclose itself as a desperate move by which Hitler made the most of the worst—ruthlessly standing the German people against the wall of their homeland while Allied forces hammered their way to the doorsteps of the Reich.

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY TOWNS

Activities of Interest To All In The Various Communities

GLEANED BY SCRIBES

The formation of a new joint high school, the fourth now in operation in Bucks county, has been announced by the school directors of Warminster and Upper Southampton townships.

The new school, which will occupy the present Upper Southampton high school building at Southampton, has been designated as the Upper Southampton - Warminster Joint High School, and began operations as such with the opening of school yesterday.

Under the terms of the agreement drawn up, each district will share the cost of operating the high school on the basis of the number of pupils in average daily attendance. The increase in the number of pupils enrolled is expected to result in operating economies which will permit the broadening of the school curriculum and the addition of a more extensive sports and activity program.

Officers of the new joint high school, who will also serve as the joint committee to operate the school, are: President, William A. Yerkes, Southampton; vice-president, Samuel Walker, Ivyland; secretary, A. L. Fisher, Hartsville; treasurer, Harry L. Harding, Southampton. F. Eugene Klingner has been elected as supervising principal.

Pvt. Robert A. Sigafos, son of Dr. and Mrs. John W. Sigafos, Doylestown, returned to his home last week from the central Pacific theatre of war to spend three days prior to his transfer to the U. S. Military Academy Preparatory Unit at Cornell University.

Pvt. Sigafos is one of five soldiers selected out of the central Pacific area to represent the Army in the March, 1945, entrance examinations to the U. S. Military Academy.

Previous to his transfer, Pvt. Sigafos was a member of the Pennsylvania 11th Infantry and has been overseas for the past year.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

The Wallace Overlay

Washington, Sept. 6. ONE of the most distressing things that can happen to a sincere man in public life is to be overplayed by his zealous friends. Of course, if he is a conscious demagogue, he co-operates in the overplaying, takes the leading part himself, encourages the clique.

—O—

That is the recognized demagogue's game—to pretend to be more than he is; to profess principles only because they are expedient; to pose as possessed of wisdom, courage and character foreign to his system. Such men are devoid of sensitiveness and being overplayed does them no damage—quite the contrary. They do not really fool themselves, but they do fool a good many undiscerning people.

—O—

BEFORE we got into the war the little group of advanced New Dealers with whom Mr. Wallace had trained began to groom him for the Presidency. And certain evidence of favor from Mr. Roosevelt seemed

LETTERS TO AN AMERICAN FAMILY

No. II (Doylestown Intelligencer, September 7th)

Dear John and Mary Citizen:—

Your reply came today, and I was gratified to have you express your interest in the subject of the New Deal's effect upon your daily lives.

I am going to start by recalling the night when John, Jr., had just received his draft call and realized he had to go, leaving his wife and baby behind.

While you were talking it over, one of you—and I'm sorry I don't remember which—said something which has been ringing in my mind ever since. It was this:

"Being an American sometimes calls for sacrifices—but it's worth all it costs."

That is so true!

No matter how much history one reads, I don't think any of us ever stops getting a thrill in remembering how many generations, how many struggles, how many wars, how many lives, it cost to build a nation like the United States, nor how valuable to us is the form of government we inherited.

Unlike most other countries, our form of government did not just grow into what it is. American men sat down together with the best thinking of three thousand years of history at their disposal, and chose from among all the available plans the one which offered the best hope of success as a nation and freedom as a people.

These men weren't merely making an experiment—they were meeting an urgent need. The new nation born by the Revolution was desperately sick, if not dying, and the Americans who met in Philadelphia in 1787 were working against time to save it.

They wanted several things. They wanted, not just temporarily but forever, to be free from tyranny—they'd seen enough of it in their own lifetimes to know how miserable is the lot of the average citizen when his rulers become too powerful.

They wanted a permanent government, but adaptable enough to meet changing needs; one that could expand with the growing nation; one which could, should the need arise, be changed in fundamental respects—but changed by orderly processes, neither by stealth nor fraud nor revolution.

They wanted a chief executive, but they were determined to guard against his ever seizing too much power. They planned deliberately that the office they called President should be held back from autocracy by Congress, the Courts, the Constitution itself; so that the President might always be the leader, but never the master.

Just as a group of men might decide to protect a joint bank account by providing that checks against it must be signed by two or more of their number, so the founders of the nation sought to protect our great possession—liberty—by making the three essential branches of government equal and independent.

The Revolution won freedom—freedom for the nation, freedom for the citizens in it. The purpose of the Constitution was to preserve that freedom. Under the

Legion Calls Meeting To Plan for Marking End of War With Germany

INVITE ALL TO ATTEND

A meeting has been called for Tuesday evening in the Bracken Post Home of the American Legion, at which time it is proposed to discuss and consider plans for marking the end of the war with Germany.

The meeting will get under way at eight o'clock and individuals and representatives of lodges, service clubs and other interested groups are asked to attend.

It is planned by the Legion to get a consensus of opinions as to the form of marking the end of hostilities with Germany. Some have suggested that there should be a big parade held on the evening of the day upon which the war with Germany officially ends. Others think that the event should be marked in an entirely different manner, and it is with the idea of getting the opinions of many others that the meeting has been called for Tuesday evening.

A committee has not been named, but William Mack, an active and prominent Legionnaire, has been selected chairman by the Bracken Post to open the meeting Tuesday night.

Mr. Mack is very anxious that all persons interested attend the meeting. Organizations are invited to send representatives and to voice their opinions. Churches have been asked to aid the project, and the Rev. George E. Boswell, dean of the Bristol clergyman, has stated that he will ask the other clergymen to attend. Burgess Jacob C. Schmidt, Sr., has given his approval and is of the opinion that the affair should be supported enthusiastically by the residents of Bristol. Approval has been voiced by Chief of Police Linford J. Jones, and Fire Chief Hagerman has informed the Legion that the fire department will join in the affair.

The Rev. Paul E. Baird and the Rev. Albert Glass, assistant rectors of St. Mark's Church, are interested, and will aid the project.

FOUR YEARS IN JAIL GIVEN CAR DRIVER IN FATAL ACCIDENT

Frank Sachs, of Chalfont, Pleads Guilty Before Judge Keller

KILLED GIRL OF 18

"No Parole" To Be Granted Is Edict of The Judge

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 7.—Four years in the Bucks County Prison and "no parole" before that term is served, was the sentence imposed on 20-year-old William Frank Sachs, Chalfont "automobile cowboy," who pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Hiram H. Keller to charges of involuntary manslaughter and failure to stop and render assistance that resulted in the death of Elizabeth Hiesel, 18-year-old West Chester State Teachers' College student on the night of May 28.

Miss Hiesel was riding a bicycle in front of her parents' home on the Limekiln pike, near Chalfont, when she was struck by an automobile driven by Sachs—a car that he had taken from a friend and without the permission of the owner, and was driving without an operator's license. The girl was killed almost instantly. Sachs fled and was arrested later in New Jersey after abandoning the car near the scene of the accident.

The victim was the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Chester Hiesel, then of Chalfont, but now of Ambler. Dr. Hiesel is a well known chiropractor.

"The evidence is overwhelming against you in this case," Judge Keller remarked to Sachs in pronouncing sentence. "You are an irresponsible individual who does not care what happens. You are what your attorney has described you—an automobile cowboy." By your carelessness you have snuffed out the life of a young girl. You did not see fit to stop after striking her, in spite of her father's warning, and then you fled.

Attorney Webster S. Achey, representing Sachs stated to the court that there is nothing that can be done to atone the parents of this young girl whose life was lost, and that his client had nothing to do but to plead guilty.

District Attorney Edward G. Biester, for the Commonwealth, stated to the court that this was a very serious offense.

"Of course the sentence that the court imposes will not heal the wounds inflicted in this case, but this boy's record is bad; the whole picture is black," District Attorney Biester commented. "I think a substantial sentence should be imposed."

On the charge of involuntary manslaughter, Judge Keller sentenced Sachs to pay a fine of $500 and costs and serve three years in the Bucks County Prison. On the charge of failing to stop and render assistance, a fine of $5 and costs and one year in prison, to begin at the expiration of the first sentence, was imposed. Sentence was suspended on a charge of assault upon Dr. Hiesel, the victim's father.

Trooper J. J. Shorelin, of the Doylestown sub-station of State Police, who with other troopers investigated the case, read Sachs' confession to the court. Sachs testified that the settlement was correct in detail and that he was guilty, and that he had been drinking some beer in Philadelphia the afternoon of May 28 and some more beer at a hotel in Hilltown on the evening the accident occurred.

According to Trooper Shorelin, Sachs stated to him that after he had struck the girl, he fled to Philadelphia with the assistance of his brother, Fred, and on into New Jersey to the home of an uncle where he was later arrested. Sachs told police that he was driving along Limekiln pike when a tire blew out as he was going at a fast clip, causing the car to turn around two or three times and hit the bank on the side of the highway.

Sachs told Trooper Shorelin that he heard somebody holler but he didn't know that he had struck the girl at that time. He said that he lost control of the car and everything "went black."

Testifying yesterday Sachs stated that he got scared and "all of a sudden thought maybe he did hit the girl and he drove as fast as he could."

Sachs hid the car in a garage near Chalfont after driving away, and Sachs himself hid in some high grass. Another car came along and his brother Fred was in it. The defendant testified that he then told his brother what had happened, and that it was then that Fred Sachs told his brother that

The Interstate Commerce Com-
mission recently released figures
for the first six months of this
year on the number of casualties
caused by railroad accidents.

They show that 2,277 persons
were killed, including passengers,
employees and persons who had
no business on railroad property.

Although the total seems large,
it is really small compared to the
tremendous distances covered by
the railroads of the United States
and with the heavy wartime bur-
den of passengers and freight.

But the real significance of the
commission's figures is revealed
when they are compared to the
first six months of 1943. An increase in casualties might have
been expected as traffic movement
became heavier and the equipment became older. Instead there is a reduction from
the 1943 figures of 72.

The total of passenger deaths
remained the same for both periods—43—a small number considering the many millions of
passengers transported.

The commission's report contains statistics on the number of persons injured. Here the
record is amazingly good. Only
1,973 persons injured as against
2,429 in 1943.

These figures should calm any
fears which may linger in the
public mind concerning the abili-
ty of the railroads to stand up
under the strain of wartime
traffic. When shortages in personnel and materials are taken
into consideration, the record
seems almost incredible.

PULLMAN'S TURN
On October 5 a major change
in a familiar American set-up is
scheduled to occur. The Pull-
man Company on that date is to
submit a plan for divorcing its
sleeping car and car manufacturing operations. A new court or-
der holds the manner in which
this company has operated for
three-quarters of a century illegal.

The sleeping car business is
operated by the Pullman Company
and the manufacturing end by
the Pullman Standard Car
Manufacturing Company, both
being subsidiaries of Pullman Inc.

One possibility is the sale of
the sleeping car business to the
railroads, with the parent com-
pany retaining the manufacturing
concern. This would turn over
to 139 Class 1 railroads, 7,766
sleeping cars. There are various
methods by which this division of
cars could be carried out. It
could be made on the basis of
average Pullman revenues shown
by the various roads. Another
plan would distribute the sleep-
ing cars to eastern, western and
southern groups, thus permitting
the maintenance of car pooling
as at present practiced with the
nation as a unit.

The cars may be sold to individual railroads, but the roads do
not appear enthusiastic about this
plan, contending that it would
compel individual roads to buy
additional cars to meet peak
traffic demands, leaving idle cars
standing in yards in slack sea-
sons.

THE GREAT GAME
OF POLITICS
By FRANK R. KENT

ground for holding that Mr. Wallace was his preference for his successor. There never was any real
ground for this assumption, but it
seemed plausible. At any rate, Mr.
Wallace made a speech which threw
his friends into ecstasies. It was
likened to the Gettysburg Address.
He was hailed as a second Lincoln
and labeled as the "great liberal leader of the country." It was a
terrible case of overplaying, though.
It would not have been so had but for Mr. Wallace's efforts to measure
up. From then on his speeches
were all based on the assumption
that he really was "the great liberal leader."

AFTER a while this began not to
sit so well with the White House
aiders and the Wallace campaign
began to bog down very quickly when it
became clear that Mr. Roosevelt's
real choice for his successor was
Mr. Roosevelt. The notion that Mr.
Roosevelt had a special fondness
for Mr. Wallace was badly dam-
aged, too, when the President sustained Mr. Jesse Jones in his feud
with Mr. Wallace and shot the latter's so-called Board of Economic Welfare from under him. For a

while "the great liberal leader"
was somewhat subdued, but his
friends did not let him stay that
way. His campaign for renoma-tion, supported by the CIO and all
the radical organs in the country,
got under way.

AGAIN hailed as the "great liberal
leader" Mr. Wallace responded with
a series of speeches assailing big
business and the railroads and pro-
claiming himself the champion of
the "common man." In all this he
was entirely sincere. However, the
general response was not favorable.
Mr. Wallace gained a reputation of
being an extreme and somewhat
unbalanced radical whom it would
be very bad to have in the White House—if anything happened to
Mr. Roosevelt. To such an extent
did this feeling spread, that Mr.
Roosevelt's political wheel horses,
such as Eddie Kelly of Chicago, in-
sisted that the renomination of Mr.
Wallace might cost him a million
votes. In consequence, Mr. Wal-
lace, honest, sincere and full of
noble impulses, was ditched by the President—for purely selfish and
sordid reasons.

IT WAS a dreadful blow to Mr.
Wallace and his friends, but they
were all so completely committed
to Mr. Roosevelt that they could
not afford to get mad and denounce
him. Like Mr. Wallace, they just
had to keep in line. But, this reverse only discouraged the Wallace
group for a short while. Already,
another drive to overplay him has
begun. His boosters in the radical
press insist that he now has a
larger personal following than ever
before, which, of course, is non-
sense. The CIO publicity agencies,
the "liberal" columnists and the
organs of the Communist party all
sing the same tune. Despite the
treachery which sunk him at Chicago, Mr. Wallace, they say, is still
the "hope of the liberals." More-
over, though he will support Mr.
Roosevelt in this campaign, in the
future Mr. Wallace will not be

found walking in the footsteps of
any man but marching at the head
of the "great liberal movement,"
carrying aloft its unstained banner.

THERE we have it again—this terrible overplay of a sincere man by
his more or less sincere friends.
And, once more the undimmed
and always credulous Mr. Wallace
is about to respond with speeches.
It is a strange and somewhat pa-
thetic exhibition. The truth about
Mr. Wallace is that he is not a
"great liberal leader" but a rather
confused crusader who has been
labeled a leader. He is the victim
of the overplay of his injudicious
friends. He is almost certain, if
he keeps heeding their calls, to
have other bumps and bruises as
he rushes along the road. But,
nothing can be done about that.
Curiously enough, he seems to like
falling down.

Wonderful is the oblong, square,
metal-zippered nylon cover for
a loaf of bread, at $2.25, and one

Spanish Recipes Combine Meats and Tomatoes

Victory gardens are laden with tomatoes—those historic fruits originally known as love apples. Probably because the first wild tomatoes were discovered in South America, we often use them in sauces and meat combinations that have Spanish or Mexican motif. Tomatoes are especially good with meats and may be served in a variety of ways.

Ripe or green tomatoes sliced (with skin on), dipped in a mixture of corn meal, sugar, salt and pepper, and fried in bacon drippings will make a luscious breakfast or luncheon dish when served on rounds of toast and topped with crisp bacon slices.

A Spanish sauce is perfect for various ready-to-eat meats and also for roast beef, hamburger, and many meat loaves. To make Spanish sauce, cook slowly one tablespoon of chopped onion and one tablespoon of chopped green pepper in two tablespoons of drippings or oil for about five minutes. Add two cups of stewed tomatoes, salt and pepper to taste, and simmer until sauce is thick. This makes about one and a half cups of sauce.

Stuffed Baked Tomatoes

6 firm, smooth tomatoes
1½ cups soft bread crumbs
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons bacon drippings
3 crisply broiled bacon slices, crumbled.

Cut a piece from the stem end of each tomato and remove centers without breaking the walls. Make a stuffing of the tomato centers and other ingredients, mix well and pack into tomato shells. Place small piece of butter or inch-long piece of uncooked bacon on top. Put in baking dish and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until tender. Serve hot in baking dish.

Smothered Beef Specialty
3 lbs. of chuck, rump, clod, or any less tender cut of beef
Flour
Salt and pepper
1 cup cooked, strained tomatoes
3 onions
2 tablespoons drippings
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
1 teaspoon celery seed.

Dredge the meat with flour mixed with salt and pepper and brown it in fat in a heavy frying pan. Slice the onions and brown them in the drippings. Add to this the mustard, celery seed, and tomatoes. Pour this hot sauce over the meat and simmer about three hours, or until meat is tender.

Chili Balls

1 pound ground beef
1 pound ground pork
1 beaten egg
½ cup milk
2½ cup uncooked rice
2 teaspoons chili powder
2 teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons lard or drippings
2½ cups cooked tomatoes
2½ cups water
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt

Mix the ground pork and beef with the egg, milk, rice, and one teaspoon of chili powder. Form into balls and brown them in hot fat. Combine the tomatoes, water, onion, remaining salt and chili powder. Bring this to a boil. Drop meat balls into the liquid; cover pan and simmer slowly for one and a half hours. This makes 18 balls. They are good served on hot macaroni or rice.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

American patrols of the Fifth Army entered the town of Prato. The Fifth made appreciable progress also in the direction of Pistoia and already control a north-south highway leading to the town.

Nazi forces frantically used small arms, mortar and machine-gun fire and dense mine fields in attempts to halt the Fifth's advance.

But spearheads of the Fifth, under Lt. Gen. Mark Wayne Clark, already are within six miles of the Germans' vaulted Gothic Line stretching across northern Italy.

In the Pacific, new sky blows were hurled against the Japanese, from the island of Marcus and Iwo Jima in the north as far south as the Dutch Indies.

Pacific fleet headquarters disclosed that Marcus had been attacked by land-based Liberator bombers for the first time. The planes presumably sortied from the new American bases in the Mariana Island chain, and, despite heavy anti-aircraft fire, destroyed numerous installations and a building believed to have been an ammunition dump.

A Navy B-24, fanning out to Iwo Jima, downed a Japanese transport plane, the Navy announced. This disclosure came shortly after radio Tokyo reported six Japanese admirals were lost in "recent enemy action."

Other bombers, from Southwest Pacific areas, struck at the Philippines, where three additional Japanese freighters were sunk, and in addition raided the enemy's Sasa airdrome on Davao. Raids also were carried out against German Island in the Netherlands Indies and upon Japanese positions on Dutch New Guinea's Vogelkop Peninsula.

Japan is "in the midst of a grave situation upon which depends the rise or fall of the Empire," according to the Japanese Premier, Gen. Kuniaki Koiso, who in his first speech since he succeeded Hedeki Tojo told the 85th extraordinary session of the Diet that Japan can not overlook possibility of an Allied landing in Nippon.

Three Brothers Meet in One of Scotland's Ports

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Sept. 7.—The three sons of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tocherman, Sr., met accidentally in Scotland recently.

When Fred Tocherman, Merchant Seaman, passed through the customs at a Scottish port one of the officials remarked on the oddness of his name, stating that he had passed two other merchant seamen through on the previous day. Fred made further inquiry and located the ship on which his two brothers, Frank and William, are serving.

This was the first meeting of the brothers in several months. Fred had not known that both his brothers were stationed on the same ship.

LETTERS TO AN AMERICAN FAMILY

No. 11.

(Doylestown Intelligencer, Sept. 7th)

Constitution, the American people themselves are the rulers of their own country.

It is this ideal which set American government apart from nearly all other governments in the world. It is hard to think of any other large nation in which the people themselves, and not a royal family or a ruling class, have the right to the last word on what the government and the nation shall do.

Like all other forces of government, this sovereignty of the people also was limited and restricted. Government by sheer majority would be mob rule, destructive of minority rights—as unjust and unreasonable as any other form of tyranny.

The will of the American people is limited largely by the calendar. Popular sentiment must be, not a whim, but an enduring determination. Once the determination is there, anything in our government, even the constitution itself, can be changed by the people of the United States.

This power is the cornerstone of all American freedom.

It is the foundation of what we mean when we say proudly, "We are Americans."

Of all the deadly blows which could be struck at the American people, none could be more destructive than those aimed at weakening this control by American citizens over their nation.

Yet if you ask whether the New Deal has seriously weakened the power of the American people to guide their own destiny, the answer must be an immediate and unqualified "Yes."

If you will bear with me in my next letters, I shall try to recall to you certain facts which I think you will agree abundantly prove that statement.

Your good friend,
THE REPUBLICAN.

Help us all, our heavenly Father, to seek first the kingdom of heaven and its righteousness. May we put first things first in order of time, in order of importance, in order of endeavor. May we all be in quest of the best, and never be satisfied with any lesser good. Thou didst give unto us thy very best, thy very all, even thy only begotten Son. May we respond by giving thee, not our second best, but our very all. We ask in the name of Jesus Christ. Amen.

YANKEE FANS ARE WATCHING DETROIT AS RACE NEARS END

They Secretly Expect Yanks To Win Pennant But Have Fingers Crossed

MUST BEAT TIGERS

Tigers Are Within A Half-Game of The Leaders

By John Cashman
(I. N. S. Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—While they've made no public pronouncement on the matter, people up Yankee Stadium may secretly, silently expect the Bronx Bombers to win the American League pennant this year, but today they looked in the direction of Detroit and crossed their fingers.

Ed Barrow, major domo of the Yanks' front office, openly admits the Tigers are the team to beat.

"Detroit will be the toughest club for us to keep down," asserted the 70-year-old Mr. Barrow.

"The Tigers," he said, "not only have the best pitching, but they've proved terrific in the clutch."

These observations from Barrow came as the Tiger tornado rolled into within a game and a half of the league-leading Yankees, and only one game behind the St. Louis Browns.

This high-flying Detroit gang scored a notch closer to the leaders with a 3 to 2 triumph over the Chicago White Sox last night in the lone major league contest on schedule.

The Tigers grabbed a two-run lead over the Sox's John Humphries, and added the clincher tally in the third. Chicago scored single markers in the second and third, but collected eight hits off Rube Gentry in comparison to seven Humphries allowed Detroit.

With the Yankees idle again today while both St. Louis and the terrific Tigers engage in games that may bring the American League chase closer to a dead heat, there was little wonder that the Bronx Brigade took note of the situation.

He may have been whistling through the graveyard, of course, but spokesman Barrow had virtually nothing to say in favor of the St. Louis Browns.

"The toughest team between the Yanks and the pennant," he stated, "is Detroit," adding that Boston's Red Sox have a fighting chance to win.

The Tigers, who chinned themselves just off the cellar deck since July 10, square off today with Cleveland. The Browns tackle Chicago.

A victory for St. Louis over the Sox, in their night contest in Chicago, would deadlock the league lead insofar as the Yanks, who polished off the Camp Shanks Army Club, 14-1, in an exhibition game yesterday, have a holiday.

The Tigers, of course, could nudge in behind the Yanks by only one game if Detroit takes the Indians.

Far as bearing on the pennant race, National League games for the day were of little consequence, except for the trio of cellar dwellers—Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Boston. For your information, however, the league leading St. Louis Cardinals meet Chicago at night in Sportsman's Park, Boston plays at New York, Pittsburgh invades Cincinnati and Brooklyn appears at Philadelphia.

he had assisted in taking Miss Helsel to the Elm Terrace Hospital at Lansdale, where she was pronounced dead.

The defendant stated that he then took the car out of the garage, drove it down a road, abandoned it and rode to Philadelphia with his brother, Raymond Vanluane. Sachs testified, reported the car stolen.

Sachs took a bus from Philadelphia to Pitman, N. J., to the home of Fred Lyster, Jr. The next morning he said that he read in a Philadelphia newspaper that the girl had died, and then he was really scared still more. State Police came to the uncle's home in Pitman and arrested Sachs after his brother had furnished them with the information.

Dr. Helsel, the victim's father, testified that he was standing under an overshoot of his barn when he saw a car coming down the highway at a high rate of speed. He said that he heard a terrific impact. Dr. Helsel said that he did not actually see the car strike his daughter's bicycle but that she was carried about 150 feet and saw her drop off the windshield of the car. Dr. Helsel said that he signaled for the driver to stop but that he fled and had it not been that he had stepped out of the way, he too, would have been hit by the car.

The defendant Sachs testified that he was born in Philadelphia but that he had been living with his grandfather, Fred Lyster, in Chalfont, for some time. He stated that he attended Newville school up until the eighth grade, the same school that Miss Helsel once attended.

Sachs testified that he enlisted in the Army over a year ago and was discharged in Kentucky for "lack of intelligence." He later worked in a Lansdale feed mill, then in a concrete block plant at Chalfont. He also served six months in the Merchant Marine. He was arrested once for being in possession of brass knuckles just before entering the Merchant Marine. When he was arrested he was working for a farmer near Carversville.

The records show that Sachs was discharged from the Army on a medical certificate under "Section 8"—"Inaptness or undesirable habits or traits of character."

Fred Sachs, brother of the defendant, testified that he was driving along Limekiln pike at the time of the accident and that he did not know then that his brother was the driver of the car that had struck Miss Helsel, but that he learned it Mrs. Carl Shreiber, Daniel Mc-

when he returned to Chalfont.

Character witnesses called in behalf of Sachs included G. C. Widney, Newville; John Stadnycki and Mrs. Anna Formenski, of near Chalfont; and Peter Rickert, of Hilltown township.

TIRES... WHERE ARE THEY?

WHAT happened to all the tires? Someone says, ask the tire manufacturers about the new critical tire shortage. Are they making less casings? Are tires being used up faster? How soon can we expect the situation to improve? When will the "A" driver be able to get new tires?

The answers come back fast. We are making more tires than ever before. Double the quantity made in 1940. War destroys thousands of tires. The demand for new tires is ever growing as old rubber breathes its last blowout. Your tire dealer can't tell you when more tires will be available because his manufacturer can't tell him. It seems the "A" driver's chance for new tires is still very remote. THIS IS A REAL CRISIS.

PLENTY OF RUBBER . . . Latest reports say that there is sufficient quantities of rubber available. THEN WHERE ARE ALL THE TIRES? Most of us think of a rubber shortage when speaking of a tire shortage. But TODAY THE RUBBER SHORTAGE IS BEHIND US AND THE TIRE SHORTAGE IS STILL WITH US.

There are two negative factors that explain our present tire plight. First, there is a manpower problem in the tire industry. Just not enough tire builders around to keep all the molds hot. Secondly, longer and busier-than-ever supply lines have been made necessary to keep the lightning thrusts of our armies well supplied with the vital tools of war. The blast of battles have left the railroads in ruin, so THE ARMY MOVES ON RUBBER. The Army calls for more tires. In the factories, personnel is shifted from passenger production to manufacture of heavy duty truck tires. This is felt in curbed quotas of passenger casings and naturally in a large reduction of available truck tires. THE ARMED FORCES ARE NOW TAKING 98% OF ALL THE TIRES MADE.

WHAT IS THE OUTLOOK . . . Selective service is releasing former tire builders. These men are being trained to work with the new synthetic materials and improved machinery. But even then, with our already tremendous rate of production, increased tire ration quotas will be slow.

For an early decrease in military demand is not expected nor can it be hoped for, despite the rapid Allied victories reported in the European theatre.

Trucks and busses have already felt the pinch. One large bus company in New York has laid up a number of its buses for lack of tires. This may be a general condition very soon unless stringent conservation measures are taken.

Meanwhile, to alleviate the critical truck tire situation, the Army is sending back its used tires which are being reconditioned for use in this country. The army is also returning many captured German tires stripped from wrecked vehicles. These, too, can be used again. You can see one of these prizes of war now exhibited in our show windows at 320 Mill St. All this helps . . . but the plain fact is . . . as long as hostilities continue the tire shortage will be with us. FACE THIS FACT SQUARELY.

WHAT YOU SHOULD DO NOW . . . Conserve the tires you have. They won't be easy to replace. Keep your air pressure just right. Remember victory speed gives longest tire life. Be sure to stop in and see your Dunlop man. He can show you just when to recap and what to repair. If your need for new tires is real and you are qualified let Dunlop make your official OPA inspection and file your application form. Dunlop makes no charge for these services. Above all if you have any questions about the preservation or replacement of your tires be sure to see Dunlop. As the world's oldest manufacturer of pneumatic tires we feel we have the ability to see our friends through this crisis. Come on over and lean on our shoulders. We have helped many. WE CAN HELP YOU THROUGH THIS TIRE CRISIS.
